PREFACE.

AS A RESULT of recent investigations in Spelling the number of words required to be taught has been greatly reduced in all modern courses of study. It was thought for a time that the inclusion of the "Spelling List" in the programme of studies, where it would be accessible to the teacher, or the provision of printed sheets containing these lists would meet all requirements. Experience has shown, however, that the children like to have access to the word-lists themselves; parents like to have them that they may supplement the work of the school in the case of pupils who apparently lack the spelling sense; and teachers with several grades and limited blackboard space save much time through having the spelling-lists in the hands of the pupils. It is hoped that these reasons may provide a measure of justification for the appearance of still another text-book in Spelling.

"Spelling for the Grades" contains a list of four thousand words carefully graded to the attainment of the pupil. Each grade list has two main divisions—the former is the primary or 100-per-cent. list. These are the commonest words in the language and should be mastered in their entirety by every child. The second or supplementary list is made up of words of similar difficulty but in slightly less common use. It is hoped in this way to accomplish two ends—first, to put the children in possession of the words which they will actually need; and, second, to give to the task of teaching spelling a definiteness which it has not hitherto enjoyed.

INTRODUCTION.

TO THE TEACHER.

Problem of Spelling.

The subject of spelling has been recently investigated by many experts in education. The article on spelling by Dr. Ernest Horn in the Eighteenth Yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education cites 133 such studies. These investigations have covered the whole range of spelling, including such phases as children's vocabularies, the most common words, best methods of teaching spelling, measurement of results of teaching. To put some of the results of these scientific investigations into the hands of teachers and pupils is the object of this booklet.

Spelling-books themselves reflect the results of the expert study of spelling. The book containing eight or ten thousand words and much meaningless dictation has been superseded by the minimal word-list. A child, as well as an adult, has several vocabularies. He has an oral vocabulary which he uses in speaking to others. Also there is the vocabulary which he understands when it is used by others but which he may not use himself. He has a reading vocabulary and lastly there is the vocabulary which he uses in writing. Spelling is needed only when writing. Thus a spelling-list should contain the common words used by children and adults in writing.

Jones, in his investigation, has shown that, as far as children are concerned, " Writing vocabularies commonly lag from one to three years behind the reading vocabularies." A reading vocabulary should not be the basis of the spelling-list. If the child is to be taught to spell all the words in his reading vocabulary, his reading must be restricted or much time must be wasted in spelling words which the pupil cannot and may never use in writing.

The method of conducting the spelling lesson also shows the results of scientific investigation. Educational experts do not recommend the assigning of fifteen or twenty words for individual study at home or at school to be tested the next day. This method, if method it can be called, is wrong for several reasons. In the first place, fifteen words a day assumes a much larger writing vocabulary than that of the average adult. Again, assigning and testing is not the most effective way to teach spelling. In general we may say that modern methods put more emphasis on teaching and less on testing, with fewer words in each day's lesson. Dr. Suzzallo recommends two new words per day in grades two to six.

When an attempt has been made to teach a great number of unfamiliar words to children, the percentage of accuracy has of necessity been low. Pupils were promoted if they made 50 or 60 per cent. The aim in teaching a minimal spelling-list should be 100 per cent. accuracy.

Individual Lists.

Each pupil should keep a list of his misspelled words. By means of oral spelling the teacher should test the individual pupils to see if they have mastered the words in these lists. If the same word appears in the lists of several pupils it should be added to the minimal list for class study.

The Pupil's Attitude.

Not only should the teacher try to impress the pupil with a desire for correct spelling and a dislike of incorrect spelling, but she should seek to develop in him a critical attitude toward his own spelling. He should be encouraged to ask his teacher or to consult the dictionary for the spelling of words which he has occasion to use, but which are not in his spelling-list.

Dictionary.

The use of the dictionary should be taught as early as the fourth grade. First, give the pupil practice in finding words which he already knows. When he can do this readily, teach the uses of a dictionary, such as pronunciation, meaning of abbreviations, and use of appendix.

Time.

Twenty minutes per day should be the maximum time given to spelling in any grade. With bright pupils, ten or fifteen minutes may be found sufficient.

A Common Word-list.

The words, with a few exceptions, are all found in the first 4,000 words of the Thorndike " Teacher's Word Book." In addition a few words of local usage have been included.

Tests and Measurement.

Three kinds of tests are indicated in the teaching procedure—viz., a test to determine the relative difficulty of the words, the teaching test, and the review test. Pending development of a spelling scale to accompany this text, teachers are advised to use any standard spelling scale.

Derivatives.

In this list, generally speaking, only the simplest form of the word has been included. In a few instances derivatives also will be found. It must be borne in mind that each derivative presents a separate spelling problem. The derivatives have been omitted so as not to unduly extend the word-list, but it is intended that the derived forms in—s, ies, ly, er, r, est, s, ed, d, ing, and n—shall be taught when the word in the list is first presented.

Suggestions for Teaching Spelling.

In teaching spelling the more kinds of imagery that are appealed to, the more effective the teaching will be. The following procedure is recommended:—

1. Dictate the weekly allotment of words. Have mistakes marked by the teacher or by the pupils (older pupils may correct the lists after changing papers; carefully supervise this correction, however). Mark opposite each word the number of pupils who misspelled it. Make this number the numerator of a fraction. For the denominator put the number of pupils in the class. These fractions will indicate the relative difficulty of the various words and how much teaching each word will require. (The mistakes on this preliminary test do not tend to fix the wrong spelling of the word in the pupil's memory. See Eighteenth Yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education, page 61.)

2. Next day begin the teaching of the words as follows:—

(1.) Write on the blackboard the first of those to be presented during the lesson. This is better than having the pupils look at the word in the book, because it enables the teacher to get the attention of all the pupils on the word without the distracting effect of surrounding words.

(2.) Give the correct pronunciation while writing the word on the blackboard. Avoid separating the word into syllables in such a way that it destroys the ordinary appearance of the word, thereby weakening the appeal to visual imagery. For the same reason be very sparing in the use of diacritical marks.

(3.) A pupil should know the pronunciation, meaning, and use of a word as well as the spelling. Have pupils pronounce the word as a whole and in syllables. (Faulty pronunciation is a common cause of misspelling.) It is sometimes better to use the sound unit or phonogram than to use the syllable, especially if the spelling of the sound unit is already known.

(4.) Discuss the meaning of the word.

(5.) Have pupils use the word in sentences. Be sure that these sentences clearly convey the meaning of the word. A sentence may be grammatically correct and yet not give the slightest inkling of the meaning of the word under discussion. (Time may be wasted in this step if the teacher insists in using all the words of the lesson in sentences. The pupils may already have a perfect understanding of the meaning and use of many of the words.)

(6.) Examine the word for familiar parts, difficult parts, and silent letters.

(7.) Have individual pupils, the poor spellers usually, spell the word aloud. This appeals to auditory imagery and vocal-motor imagery.

(8.) Pupils will then write the word in their books. (An appeal to visual imagery and to hand-motor imagery.)

(9.) Let pupils study the word a moment and then close their eyes and try to visualize it.

(10.) Repeat any or all of the above as many times as desired, according to the difficulty of the word, as revealed by the preliminary test.

Teaching Test.

When all the words of the lesson have been presented in the manner outlined above, review the whole list by means of oral spelling. The teacher may now give a teaching test or assign the words for individual study in school or at home, and test them the next day. If a word is missed by many pupils in the teaching test, it should be carried forward into next day's lesson and taught again.

3. Frequent review tests should be given. These review tests may be lists of words, or the words in suitable sentences. Emphasize in these review tests the most difficult words as shown by the preliminary tests and by the number of pupils who have the words in their misspelled word-list. The teacher should have individual pupils spell orally those words which appear in their misspelled word-list.

Plays and Games.

The spelling drill may be varied by making use of plays and games. (See Bibliography.)

Spelling in Rural Schools.

In rural schools, when lack of time may hinder the formal teaching of spelling, the teacher should direct the pupil to proceed as in the directions to pupils.

TO THE PUPIL.

Society looks upon the ability to spell words correctly as one mark of an educated person. To have perfect spelling in all your written work should be your aim. Nothing less should satisfy you. It is not sufficient to learn only those in your spelling-book. You should try to learn to spell correctly all those words which you have occasion to write. You can get the correct spelling from your teacher or from the dictionary. If you are not certain how to spell a word, consult your dictionary. It should be your constant companion in all written composition-work.

The following rules for learning to spell will help you:—

How to learn to spell a Word.*

1. The first step in learning to spell a word is to pronounce it correctly. If you do not know how to pronounce it, look up the pronunciation in the dictionary. When you are certain you know how the word is pronounced, pronounce it, enunciating each syllable distinctly and looking at each syllable as you say it.

2. Close your eyes and try to recall how the word looks, syllable by syllable, as you pronounce it in a whisper. In pronouncing a word be sure to enunciate the syllables carefully.

* Taken from Eighteenth Yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education.

3. Open your eyes to make sure that you were able to recall the correct spelling.

4. Look at the word again, enunciating the syllables distinctly.

5. Recall again, with closed eyes, how the word looked.

6. Check again with the correct form. This recall (as in 2 and 5) should be repeated at least three times, and oftener if you have difficulty in recalling the correct form of the word.

7. When you feel sure that you have learned the word, write it without looking at the book and then check with the correct form.

8. Repeat this two or more times without looking either at the book or at your previous attempts.

9. If you miss the word on either of these trials, you should copy it in your note-book in your list of misspelled words, since it is probably especially difficult for you.

THE COURSE OF SPELLING BY GRADES.

Children of any grade should be able by the end of the year to write perfectly all the words in their own grade lists or in the lists of any lower grade.

GRADE II.

Although pupils in Grade I. are not required to have formal lessons in spelling, a considerable number of words are well known to pupils of Grade II. on entrance to that grade. The following lists, therefore, are to be regarded as a requirement to be completed by the end of the second year.
